Mr. Randolph was Major Turpin's assistant, and though very young had given ample evidence of talent when a few months ago he died. Major Turpin was a man of the highest integrity and keenest sense of honor, and possessed a great store of information not only about his own business, but on nearly all general subjects. He was a sociable and agreeable gentleman, and had hundreds of warm friends. In his death the city loses a valuable officer and his family is bereft of a loving husband and father.

Rev. Dr. W. E. Hatcher, of Petersburg, and been selected for the service, but he having been detained by sickness, the So- wirk. clety was exceedingly fortunate in securing Rev. Dr. H. A. Tupper, corresponding secretary of the Foreign Mission Board Southern Baptist Convention. 19

The beautiful chapel was well filled with an appreciative audience, and the doctor made one of his happiest efforts, in the course of which he made a stirring appeal to the young men on the personal duty of going to the heathen.

GATHERING OF THE ALUMNI. The commencement exercises of Richmond College are now in full progress, and are attracting unusual interest. Yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock there was quite a full meeting of the Society of Alumni held in the college chapel.

A number of matters pertaining to the So ciety and of the College were discussed, and some plans of importance put in motion. LLECTION OF OFFICERS.

The President for the past year (S. H. Pul-iam, Esq., of Richmond,) having declined reclection, the Society elected the following officers for the coming year : Charles V. Meredith, president : E. C. Cabell, first vice-president; H. H. Levy, second vice-president; J. T. Whitley, third vice-president; Professor H. H. Harris, secretary; Josiah Ryland, treasurer. Judge Oscar Stevenson, of St. Paul's. Minn., was elected to deliver the next annual address. The reputation of this gentleman gives assurance that the Society has been very fortunate in its selection. From these premises he argued that mental development should be simply a mean for the noble end of being an active, useful, vital factor in society.

He insisted that Hamilton's division of studies into "liberal" and "professional" was in some respects narrow-that a " pro tessional" education might be broad in spirit education might be narrow in spirit, and in results useless.

He urged that all education should be as far as possible practical in aim and results. He remarked that the practical utility of science does not always appear to the uninitiated, and beautifully illustrated his position by reference to the history of the spectroscope, the science of language, and psychology. He disclaimed the cold utilitarianism that would make the pursuit of knowledge degenerate into mere sellish money-making, but eloquently defended the utilitarianism of Lord Bacon that makes knowledge "a rich storehouse for the glory of the Creator and the relief of man's estate."

He did not believe that all that is taught in our schools is valuable, nor that there is in very general use a really profound theory of education, but that success is often attained in spite of college training, or even without it, citing Buckle, Grote, John Stuart Mill and Spencer as examples of what men of genius and thought can accomplish without going to a college at all. He rejoiced that Bacon had freed our schools from the trumpery and cobweberey of intellect in which "the school-men" delighted, and cited a number of amusing examples of questions which they discussed. But he insisted that there is still much rubbish taught in ours chools, and gave examples of it. He then spoke more briefly of the spirit in which we should seek knowledge, and urged that it should be with a view to the glory of the Creator-that knowledge should be the handmaid of religion.

He uttered an earnest warning against the tendency, if not the aim, of much modern thought to make religion subsidiary to among whom was Mr. John Tiernau, of this knowledge, or even to reject it entirely as unworthy of a seat at the "round table" of thought and science.

He concluded by saying: "Brother Alumni, God has given us each our talent in this life. May those to whom he has given that talent in the form of knowledge and of trained intellects remember that their responsibility exceeds that of all other classes of men; and may they see to it that they use that knowledge and those intellects in building up a rich storehouse for the glory of the Creator and the relief of man's es-

BREWERY PARK--AN AFFRAY .- On Sunday evening there was an immense crowd at Brewery Park, which has become quite a popular place of resort, especially with our German citizens. Only one incident occurred to mar the peace of the occasion-a fight between George Strang and one Anderson. The parties had previously had some difficulty about money matters, and Strang insisted upon settling the difference ries-two in this State, under the general by a fight. ning an accident occurred at the Gallego Mills, that but for the presence of mind and live been fished out of Lock No. 3 of the bravery of Mr. John O. Hall, the miller, would certainly have resulted in the death of an interesting son of Major William B. War-

The water by which the mill machinery is turned passes from the basin through what is known as a forebay to and underneath the first floor of the mill to the large water-wheels. The volume of water is regulated by gates placed in the forebay just outside of the building. Mr. Hall noticed Abram Warwick, eight years old, and another smaller boy playing around a part of the forebay that is uncovered, and after warning them of their danger he went into and told him Abram had fallen into the water. Mr. Hall promptly ran out and shut cff the water from the mill, so as to prevent the body from being carried over the schute to the nearest water-wheel, and this no doubt prevented the catastrophe of a disfigured and mangled corpse; for the body turned at casioned by the falling of the woman into that point, and was swept by the current to the left about twenty feet to another place where the water is discharged upon another wheel; but by that time it had fallen so much the body was not carried over, but twirled in an eddy at the very brink.

During this time Mr. Hall was active in stopping the machinery, and then bastily taking up a trap-door jumped into the water, and groped his way in the darkness under the floor to the point where he found the body floating in the eddy. He brought it out as soon as practicable (after it had been in the water about five minutes), and rolled it upon a barrel.

By this time Dr. Coakley arrived and commenced the task of resuscitation by placing the limp body upon a table and rolling it alternately from side to breast, by which much water was expelled from the lungs and respiration was facilitated. The Doctor also caused him to vomit by placing his finger in his throat, and very soon, about thirty minutes after, he was rescued from the vater, the little fellow said, faintly: "Sea-

He was removed to the residence of his parents, and though very weak from the tertible ordeal through which he has passed will probably be entirely well in a few days. The conduct of Mr. John O. Hall deserves the highest praise. Had be hesitated a moment it would have been too late.

VIRGINIA ANTIQUITIES .- Mr. Frederick Johnston, a lawyer of Salem, some time ago ound in a watchmaker's shop of that town the colonial seal of the county of Botetourt. He presented it to the county court, and the court recently, in compliance with the request of the Virginia Historical Society, forwarded it to the secretary of the Society in this city for preservation. It is made of silver, and is in good order.

Among the papers brought over from

The body proved to be that of Lucy Melton, who by the way was one of the witnesses in the case of Horace Venable, who was convicted of the murder of Mary Holmes, and is now serving out a term in the State penitentiary. It was also ascertained that she had been lodging in the very room which was once occupied by Mary Holmes; that she was drowned in the very same lock, and, it is supposed, about the same hour of the night, the testimony bringing out the fact that a splash was heard about 124 o'clock on Saturday night last, which afterwards proved to have been oc-

the fatal water. The body was found at half-past 4 o'clock, strange to say, floating upon the water. Lucy Melton had been seen sbortly before her death; indeed was in conversation with Sarah Mackey, who was also a witness in the Venable case. At the time of her death she was said to be very drunk. No marks of violence were found upon her person, and before the inquest Dr. Taylor ascer tained that she had at the time of her death a one-dollar note in her clothing, which he now holds until called for by some person

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF Henrico County.—A meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Henrico county was beld Saturday. They closed the levy for the year 1874, and fixed the same at fifty per centum on the amount of the State tax for said year and levied a tax of fifty cents on each tithe. In the Anable case the Commonwealth's Attorney appeared and filed a written report against the consideration of his claim on the ground that under the law the Board had no udicial power to determine what compensation should be allowed the clerk for the performance of services required by law to be performed by him, but the jurisdiction to letermine the matter belonged to the County Court. The Board being in doubt as to their urisdiction in the premises referred that question to the County Court.

Richmond furniture works, established three or four years ago by Mr. Garrett F. Watson, is probably the most extensive establishment of the kind in the South. The material used is taken from our own forests, and the profits of the proprietor go to increase the wealth and prosperity of the city and State. Furniture of all descriptions and grades, from the finest and costliest to the cheapest is made, and retail dealers anywhere in Virginia, or in other States, are promptly supplied with whatever they may order. The outlit of the St. James Hotel is a specimen of their handicraft, and it speaks strongly for the taste and skill displayed by their workmen.

MALE ORPHAN ASYLUM, June 22, 1874. Dear Dispatch: Please return our sincere thanks through your columns to I. D. Briggs for a handsome donation of about 200 loaves of his best family bread, besides a large lot of buns, rolls, and bisevits. SUPERINTENDENT.

It appears to be generally understood that the City Conservative Committee will adopt a plan for a primary election-to be made use of in the approaching congressional canvas. In this the party will sustain the committee; but beyond the execution of the provisions of the plan, at the proper time, it The district members of the State Committee be presumed that they will fix a day earlier than September-the heat of July and Au- H.
